We love our dogs, part of pet responsibility is to pick up their poop, it is not a good nutrient for the lawn, it is not good to leave it on a neighbors lawn and it is rude to put it in someone else's garbage can, especially when that can is empty and it becomes stuck in the bottom. If animal control sees you there is a fine involved.

Coyotes: If a problem FWC's Wildlife Alert 888 404 3922.

Facts: they live in every state except Hawaii, year round. They look like a small German Shepard, 15-30 pounds, grayish brown to black color, have a bushy tail and pointed ears. They breed yearly, have 2-12 pups per litter, raised in a den, yip and howl and are shy and elusive They will eat anything: fruits, nuts, seeds, garbage, dead animals, rodents, small pets and food left out. Please Do Not Feed Them. They are most active from dusk until dawn. If you see them make noise, wave your arms but do not attack them. They fear you.

Please do not drive your golf cart between homes to get to the golf course as that is someone's PRIVATE PROPERTY = TRESPASSING

There are alligators around and they can target pets. There is a state law that prohibits killing, harassing or possessing an alligator.

Street and sidewalk work is going on around the neighborhood. Watch for workers and make sure you thank them for all their hot, hard work.

Do your neighbor and yourself a favor and keep up your property as curb appeal can make all our properties look great and thus increase the values of our homes.

Be safe, keep cool and hope to see you soon!
